Meeting NAEYC Professional Preparation Standards: A Self-Study Workshop for Baccalaureate and Graduate Degree Faculty

Saturday, June 5, 2010

8:30 – 4:00 pm
Phoenix, AZ

This full-day workshop is scheduled pre-conference to the 2010 NAEYC National Institute for Early Childhood Professional Development in Phoenix, Arizona. The workshop is designed for baccalaureate or graduate degree early childhood faculty and staff who are engaged in the NAEYC degree program recognition process, compiling program reports, or are responding to conditions in recognition reports.

This session will go into depth, assuming some familiarity with the accreditation standards and process. A short orientation workshop focused on a basic overview of the standards and process steps is available as part of the institute program. This full-day separate-fee workshop is for those who want more depth and advanced support.

Presenters include faculty from successfully accredited programs, peer reviewers, and senior NAEYC staff.

Participants will:

- Receive a copy of Preparing Early Childhood Teachers: NAEYC's Standards for Programs
- Discuss ways to use key student assessments, rubrics, and student performance data to improve programs.
- Practice designing assessments that align with the NAEYC standards, see what an effective rubric looks like, and discover how to present persuasive data.
- Engage in hands-on practice with accreditation documents and interactive dialogue with colleagues.
- Meet and talk with accreditation senior staff and faculty from successfully accredited programs.
- Return to their institution with an action plan, resources, other practical tools, and supportive professional relationships.
